way for Andropov's successor

From Richard Owen, Moscow

The power struggle in the President Andropov has already begun, according to informed sources, with Mr Geidar Aliyev and Mr Grigoriy Romanov emerging as the front-runners.

Speculation that Mr Andro-

Union officials predicted last night that the campaign will run for many months, perhaps even years, and it is the first time since the strikes were launched nearly two months ago that the TUC has agreed to give full backing to the campaign.

Delegates to the POEU's enference in Blackpool will today receive a copy of a letter sent by Mr Len Murray, general secretary of the TUC, to all unions urging their support for the strikes through interest-free loans, or donations to the union, whose action is costing more than £300,000 a week to finance. The union is paying

All POEU members are being asked to pay a levy of £1 per week to help with the cost of the action, but Mr Bryan Stanley, general secretary of the union, said last night that the appeal to other unions by the TUC was a contingency measure in case BT stepped up disciplinary action, which is likely after the conference ends.

About 50 POEU members are faced with dismissal by BT for failing to work normally, but the management said last week that it would hold off processing their dismissals until after the conference, in the hope that delegates would vote for an end to the action. Mr Stanley claimed the conference this week would give "overwhelming" backing to the continuance of the action.

The TUC has called on all its strike or have been suspended affiliated unions to make by the management. will be a massive response from the union in terms of increased action of all kinds. We shall be making that clear to BT next week. If dismissals take place, it will mean that industrial relations in BT will be radically and irrevocably changed for as far as can be seen in the future, and make it a much more unattractive prospect for sale."

> It is thought that the union's own levy on members is falling short of the union's expenditure on the campaign by as much as £200,000, and there will be emergency motions tabled for the conference calling for an increase in the levy because it is feared that the TUC appeal will not meet with a wide response.

. There will also be moves made by militants for the action to be stepped up, but Mr Stanley predicted that the present policy of allowing the wages to over 2,400 telephone He said: "If any of our executive to select targets for engineers who are either on members are dismissed there strikes would be confirmed.

Protestant terror force demands action on Ulster

teer Force, a Protestant terrorist organization, has demanded political movement in the province, and says, on the eve of the Anglo-Irish summit meeting that it is prepared to deal with any "enforced and undemocratic initiative".

The UVF released pictures of new weapons, including a quantity of Swedish machine guns, which it claims to possess. Its statement, issued in the name of the "Brigade Staff", says that the UVF recognizes the made for political moves. the need for political move-ment, but this is conditional on four points being met.

These are: that there should be a ceasefire by all paramilitary groups; the Army should with-draw to its barracks in Northern draw to its barracks in Northern Ireland; there should be an acceptance in all areas of the province of a policing role for the Royal Ulster Constabulary; and the British Government should convene an all-party conference to discuss movement towards a political settlement together with discussions on a phased amnesty.

Security precautions for today's Anglo-Irish summit meeting have been increased after terrorist violence in Northern Ireland which left three policemen dead and almost 50 people injured.

When the Irish Prime Minister, Dr Garret Fitzgerald, meets Mrs Margaret Thatcher at Chequers, it will be in the shadow of the province's worst spate of shooting and bombings without warning this year. The Irish National Liberation Army, whose "no warning"

Local objectors say that the interference from the six transmitters, each with a power of 300,000 watts, would create immense electrical difficulties over a wide area, including most of Stratford itself.

The corporation, acting as agents for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, says the station it proposes to build at Bearley, north of Stratford, will improve reception in Eastern Europe, the Middle and Far East, Africa and North and South America.

It already has 51 transmitters in Britain handling its external service broadcasting. About three years ago it proposed a similar station near Yeovilton, Somerset, but the plan was rejected after Ministry of Defence objections that it would cause interference with the local naval airfield.

There will be bitter oppo-sition to the latest proposal from Warwickshire County

Israeli troops work on Sabbath to fortify bases

Israeli troops througout southern Lebanon have spent a frenetic weekend trying to make their scores of outposts secure from Arab suicide bombs like the one which killed 60 people in Tyre on Friday and severely dented the morale of the largest army in the Middle East.

The mood of the men is the same as the mood in all of Israel after a catastrophe like that - it is bad". Lieutenant-Colonel Ahron Gonan, the Armys' chief spokesman in Didon, said, "But the State of Israel has its reasons to be in Lebanon, and until they are achieved we are going to

The most ironic sight was outside the field in Tyre which had contained three substantial Israeli-occupied buildings and where concrete blocks which had been ineffectively piled in a heap on the fateful Friday had now been built into a formidable obstacle course.

The Reagan Administration says that power-sharing before elections would set the dangerous international precedent of allowing the guerrillas to shoot their way into power".

Observers here believe that another obstacle to negotiations is the success of a guerrilla offensive that began on September 3. Military sources say there have been nearly a thousand troop casualties, dead or wounded; guerrillas have taken and then abondoned more than 60 towns and captured enough weapons from the Army to suggest that they may not need to be supplied from Nicaragua.

Television Fictional terms

Book Four (Channel 4) yesterday took as its theme "novels and nuclear war"; how, it was asked, could fiction "come to with so amorphous a subject? In fact it need not "come to" terms at all, since it always has the opportunity of making its own. When novelists decide to address themselves to the apocalypse, however, it can often be an easy option - the contemporary equivalent of Gothic horror which accommodates the most predictable or

One important distinction was not drawn in the programme. There is no reason why novelists should not create an imaginatively convincing account of nuclear warfare, if that is what they wish to do, but this does not mean that their opinions about the subject (and, by extension, about nuclear disarmament) are more significant or interesting than those of anyone else. Perhaps rather less so, since many writers seem to lack political intelligence of even the most basic kind.

The South Bank Show (LWT) offered a less turgid subject in Jack Lemmon, With his crumpled face, and eyes like two smoke-filled rooms, he has a nervousness which has been transformed into exuberance: it often seems that comedians are funny precisely because they retained a number of childlike defences. But Lemmon also has a naturally sardonic manner, which he has used to great effect in his film roles: he resembles an indiarubber ball which has at last decided to bounce back.

He is an actor rather than a comedian, of course, although it was hard to believe him when he said that "I can't just stand up and be funny, like a comic" Anyone who has seen him trip over his beels in Some Like It Hot knows that he has a natural gift for tripping all over the place. But the custom is for the group to repeat them, with variations, until satisfied that they got them right,

One consequence of this is that, however carefully one may have studied the admirably informative booklet about Australia published by the Festival d'Automne (who are also presenting exhibitions, concerts of modern music and a week of films), it is difficult to know exactly what is happening much of the time. > No wonder that Jiři Kylian, the Czech choreographer whose ballets often show an almost obsessive concern with roots in his own cultural heritage or the lives of ordinary people, wanted to study aborigine art and create a ballet inspired by it. His ambitious project for the 1982 Holland Festival unfortunately fell through, and a short spin-off from it which I saw recently more Kylian than Australian.

By coincidence, his Nether-ands Dance Theatre was in Paris at the same time as the Aborigines, for the concurrent but unconnected International Dance Festival. People spoke well of his Wiegenlied, to the Berg Violin Concerto, but his pieces on the programme I saw were disappointing marvellous movement but not really illuminating the Mahler Lieder eines fahrenden Gesellen (per-formed by a different couple for each song against a gloomy landscape in which a great heavenly door opens) or Stra-vinsky's Svadebka (The Wedding), which looks like the happy marriage of young lovers on a collective farm. It even begins with a stolen kiss before the music starts: so much for the words of alarm which the composer chose as his texts.

(PUBLISHING) Beyond the pale?

What have Mrs Rita Childers (widow of the former Irish president Erskine Childers, whose father wrote The Riddle of the Sands), Lord Henry Mount Charles (rock music activist and sometime Faber & Faber editor) and Robert Kee (former publisher, television person - as opposed to personality - and historian) in common? They have just been appointed judges of the Book Marketing Council's latest promotion, being run in conunction with the Irish Books Marketing Group. Their re-sponsibility is to discover 12 great living authors, either born in the Emerald Isle (the Republic is not exclusively specified) or who have lived there for 20 years or more. This is a follow-up to the BMC's "Best Novels of Our Time", launched at the weekend.

Predictably, the choice of judges - themselves chosen by Irish booksellers - is causing controversy in the Republic. Presumably, whoever the judges were, their list must include books by Samuel Beckett, Sean O'Faolain, Mary Lavin, Brian Moore, Edna O'Brien, William Trevor, John McGahern and Seamus Heaney, all of whom are published by British houses. No doubt this is why British publishers are to be briefed in ondon, Irish publishers in Dublin.

It will be instructive to learn how many of the top of the Irish have indigenous Irish publishers. I would hazard more than two or three.
Journalists are being flown to Dublin (courtesy of Bord Failte) for the launch of the promotion next May. No mention of the 12 great authors, most of whom are likely to reside beyond the pale.

It is reassuring, in a way, to know that language - the actual words, or some of them - still counts with publishers. Thoroas Nelson Inc. American publishers of Bibles, acquired some months ago the long-established U.S. house of Dodd, Mead, hardly known for issuing pornography, The decree went out from Dodd, Mead's new bosses that no books containing four-letter words should be published by them, or anything sacrilegious. As a result, two books have been purged from the forthcoming list. Which is more high-principled, Thomas Nelson for their act of editorial independence (or censorship) or those who protest at censorship (or proprietorial independence)?

Hardback houses, as I noted last week, are increasingly publishing paperback editions of their titles subsequent to bringing them, out between boards. In Nicholas Kenyon reverse, starting in January, Pan list - are going to be publishing hardbacks, mainly of titles they will simultaneously bring out in paperback.

This makes a great deal of literary, publishing and economic sense, and not only because it should lead to the books being reviewed along with other new hardbacks. After or before – all, the text of a paperback ("complete and unabridged", as Penguin boasted) is identical to the text of a hardback. Those who buy books still assume, to too great an extent, that paperbacks are reprints, whereas increasingly they are not, and hardbacks are originals, whereas increasingly they are unlikely to be. It can make more financial sense to publish a book first in paper-back (albeit printing more at a lower price) and only issuing a hardback later if, mainly, the libraries are likely to welcom,

The new Pan initiative will mean that authors will have the same editor for hardback an: paperback editions, and the they should receive a fu, royalty on the retail price o hardback and paperback, no having to share the latte royalty with a different, originating hard-cover imprint. The first titles include The Book of the City of Ladies by Christine de Pizan and Planiverse: Computer Contact with a Two-Dimensional World by A. K. Dewdney. Follow those.

I wrote recently that Macmillan (and no doubt other publishers) have been warning authors that the occasion may arise when it will be necessary for them to decide between selling a title to a book club, without receiving a royalty, or losing the chance of book club exposure with its accompanying advertising.

This is because, not least, the cost of book production does not diminish whereas the clubs are insisting that their members will not pay more than a certain price for books: less, sometimes, than the price of the paperback. As a result, a book club requests that an originating publisher delivers, say, 8,000 copies at £1.44 each, royalty inclusive, to its warehouse, and the club's price will be marked up considerably to accommodate the cost of promotion.

The publishers will try to fob their authors off with 10 per-cent of the proceeds (14p per book in the example given), claiming that their costs plus overheads make it impossible for them to pay more. Some publishers' overheads are, of course, inappropriately high; and book clubs, who need the product, should be made to pay a proper price.

Partenope Sadler's Wells

I knew it was a mistake: to prepare myself for the second of the Handel Opera Society's offerings I listened again to some of the complete recording of Partenope directed by Sigiswald Kuijken. As Stanley Sadie remarks in his admirably encyclopaedic contribution to the new Opera on Record 2 (Hutchinson, £15), this is "the most satisfying and stylistically the most accomplished" of all Handel opera recordings (which means that it is one of the few that is at all satisfying or accomplished), and too often during Saturday night's performance I found myself imagining the records instead of hearing the Handel Opera Society.

Which is not to imply that the performance was bad. Indeed Charles Farncombe set lively speeds and made his orchestra articulate with that bouncy staccato which has such an invigorating effect on Handel's lively music. In the more intensely lyrical numbers one longed for a lighter touch: behind the exquiste third act aria of Arsace (Paul Esswood) the strings should have sounded glassy, not mushy, Rosmira's Act II siciliano could

But Farncombe's style, it could be argued, is well suited to his singers, who tend - the stylish Mr Esswood apart to be beefier than those on Kuijken's recording. Linda Ormiston as the disguised Rosmira brought an appropriately gritty, earthy timbre to her fierce numbers; Adrian Thompson's brain-hurting Emilio was altogther too loose vocally, though his Tales of Hoffmann

(47.9mpg at a constant 56mph for example; a figure even diesels would be jealous of.)

This gain in both performance and efficiency has been achieved with the help of a BMW innovation called the eta engine.

The eta runs much more slowly than normal engines, which is how it stretches fuel.

But it produces its maximum power much earlier, at engine speeds where most driving is done.

Which is why it responds so eagerly. In the 525e the eta engine is teamed up with another BMW innovation — a four speed automatic gearbox that actually uses less fuel than a five speed manual.

It's a combination that finally lays to rest those time-honoured motoring "rules."

For example, it's no longer true that in order to shrink fuel consumption you have to shrink the engine.

The eta is a smooth running, 27 litre, six cylinder engine. Yet it uses less fuel than some engines of just 1.6 litres and four cylinders.

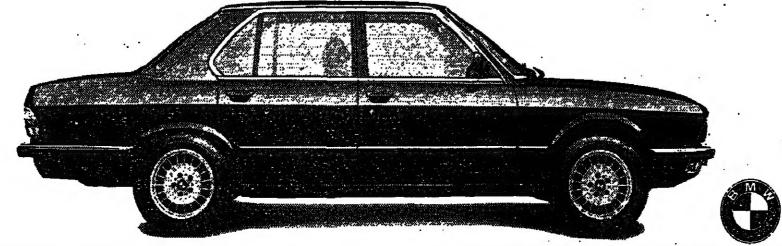

It's no longer true that an economic, low-revving engine leaves you short on power. At just 4,250rpm the eta generates a full-blooded 125bhp.

And it's certainly not true that aerodynamics is the biggest factor in saving fuel. In fact, wind resistance accounts for only 12% of a car's energy loss.

What does count is the engine. Which is why the 525e uses less fuel than the 2.2 litre automatic billed as the most aerodynamic production car in the world.

The 525e is also faster from 0-60 mph. Which demonstrates the most important breakthrough of all: that fuel economy and driving pleasure need not be mutually exclusive.

That a BMW designed for ultimate efficiency can still be the ultimate driving machine.

ratings-grabber, but he is also the man Americans after a nuclear war. When I who helped to bring to life the imprecedented Roots series and it was he who envisioned the possibility of bringing the reality of nuclear war to the TV screen.

The idea came to him about the time of the 1980 presidential election. He wandered whether it would be possible to make a movie that would make viewers think about the even more frightening prospect of nuclear holo-Stoddard was not naive. He had scen The War Game, the 1965 BBC production depicting the impact of nuclear war on a small town in England. It created a furore and was banned from television because it was hard to portray the blast accurately on the screen, and harder to get the network's support.

But Stoddard and Stu Samuels, an ABC vice-president who backed the idea, put out the word that they had some development money for a script. "What we were looking for was a story that avoided a polemic of any kind," Samuels recalls. "We wanted to stay away from Washington and the Kremlin. The story was not supposed to reach any conclusion except one: that nuclear war is horrible." Stoddard most committed to the anti-nuclear cause, says he has wanted to make an anti-nuclear film for at least 10 years. What stopped him was the enormity of the challenge. He said: "If you write a bad melodrama, who cares? If you write a bad comedy, who cares? But if you write a film about an importantobserve a young bride, on the eve of write a bad comedy, who cares? But if her marriage, become exposed to you write a film about an important-radiation and die. They will see subject it has to be absolutely lewrence, Kansas, change from a whole movement." whole movement."

I keep asking myself: is this really happening?

The Day After is more powerful - and contro-versial - than earlier films because it concentrates on the consequences rather than the causes of the war. Its main characters are not generals; they are doctors, housewives, students, children. The man who wrote it is Ed Hume. A lean, paid his dues in Hollywood for more than a decade. His credits include 21 Hours in Munich, the story of the murder of the Israeli athletes at the Olympics. He described himself as wary of causes and uninterested in the nuclear issue - uninterested, that is, until he began working on The Day

"They had no story in mind. They just wanted me to come up with what I thought was a good way of showing Brandon Stoddard is a veteran what would happen to ordinary was writing it, I was determined not to be preachy or political, but just to tell a simple story about people.

Researching the story, Hume learned more about nuclear war then he ever thought he would. And it changed him. The first time it hit him was when he saw rough cuts of the film. In one scene, Jim Dahlberg, a Kansas farmer, is trying to get his wife Eve and their children into the cellar. They have seen scores of Minuteman missiles leave their silos and expect the Soviet missiles to land any minute. Eve simply cannot cope. She numbs herself to the possibility of catastrophe, runs upstairs and begins making beds. He chases after her, and carries her screaming into the cellar.

"When I saw that scene," Hume says, "a chill went up my spine. Even though I'd written the scene, it really too terrifying". He knew it would be moved me. My son Brian, who is 13, has seen the film and is still trying to cope with it. Like all of us, he's trying to deal with the possibility that it might actually happen."

As a Hollywood veteran, Hume knows that many scripts are never produced, and many that are produced are never broadcast. He expected The Day After to be one of the casualties. He is amazed that it has survived. "Throughout the whole project, I keep asking myself. 'Is this really happen-director, Nicholas Meyer, whose last film was Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan. "When I first saw the script for The Day After, I knew why several other directors had turned it down," Meyer recalls. "After reading the damn thing, I asked myself: 'What possible reason would the network have for doing this? I could think of only one:

"I had to do it. It was the only moral thing to do. There was no way i could keep signing petitions and not make

Meyer immersed himself in the story before starning to shoot. "I would come home after a hard day's work and I'd be nauseous. What I was learning was making me sick."

Ironically, when the Bureau of Standards & Practices, television's "censors", saw the film it objected most strongly not to the scenes of atomization or annihilation, but to a scene about sex. It involves Dahlberg's daughter, Denise, who wants to make love with the young man whom she is to marry in a few days. As the scene was originally written, Denise goes to her drawer to get her diaphragm and finds it missing. When she realizes her ealous younger sister Jolene has hidden it, she begins chasing her. In the ensuing scene, she tosses it like a frisbee across the room.

They said the scene implied that the network supports birth control", Meyer recalls. "I told them, no, that's not the point. The point is later, when she is dying, she wishes she had had a child before it was too late. So the censor says: 'Why can't they just sleep together?' I can't believe it. I ask him: You mean you'd rather appear to be in favour of premarital sex?

The sex scene remains in the film (although the diaphragm itself is never visible) but other scenes were cut out altogether. One was a powerful scene in which a child screamed. A child psychologist, retained as a consultant, said it would upset children.

Stu Samuels took over, but when the best film possible." Meyer saw the result, he says he "had a fit". And when he learned that the date of broadcast had been postponed, he was even more outraged.

Top: Lawrence, Kansas, the day after above, Jason Robards as the doomed Dr Russell Oakes would say about how the war started. Somehow, in the editing overseen by Stu Samuels, the Soviets came to appear totally responsible for the outbreak of war. No one accuses Samuels of doing this on purpose. But it added to the grumblings of Meyer and led to concern that the film was being turned into Cold War propaganda. As soon as those involved in cutting the film realized what had happened, the problem was quickly corrected.

The film's ultimate fate was decided last spring, when Stoddard went to his boss. Tony Thomopoulos, president of ABC Entertainment, and after a screening explained that it would be hard to make the broadcast date of May 22. The film was too long, the suffering too protracted, some scenes were unnecessary; there was not enough time to promote it properly. Stoddard asked for more time - and, inevitably, more money.

Thomopoulos wanted it for May. By the winter of 1982, Meyer's job But he knew what Paul Newman said was over. In television, unlike feature was true: a film on an important films, it is common practice for the subject had to be "absolutely impec-director to leave and the final cutting cable". He told Stoddard: "Do whatto be done by someone at the network. ever you have to do. Go out and make ABC executives confided to the Wall Street Journal that sponsorship would be a headache. The Journal ran the story under the headline: "Holly-At issue was not only whether the wood Is Hoping Nuclear Drama Isn't

According to one of those present at the first screening of the film, Brandon. Stoddard, a veteran network executive who has brought more than 200 movies to television, was moved to tears. "After the lights came on Stoddard was crying so hard that somebody had to help him out of the Stoddard says: "I've found that working on this film has been a catharsis. Fear of the nuclear threat is the kind of fear that almost immobilizes you. This film helps you go through the fear. It gets you out of your immobility. You are now free to act."

One of his first comments after the screening was that the film must run with or without commercials". He knew that it would not be an easy sell. During the summer the industry joke was that the only interest they could find was from the canned foods and bottled water companies. They finally found some sponsors, but in all likelihood will run commercials only before the blast sequence. After that point in the film, commercial interruptions would be unseemly.

The loss may be offset by foreign distribution sales, however. As of two months before the broadcast, more than two dozen countries had purchased a licence to show the film. Many more will no doubt do so as the publicity about the film increases. ABC may not make a fortune on The Day may not make a fortune on The Day After, but it will not lose money either.

Acclaim for The Day After will certainly not be universal. In fact, charges are already being levelled at the programme for being "apolitical". People expect the film to take a stand, and to point a finger of blame at a smilty party. guilty party.

"It's not a very good film," Josh Baran says bluntly. He is national media coordinator for Target Kansas City, an initiative to organize local events around the broadcast date. Baran believes that "there's not a single line of substance in it. They have depoliticized the subject completely".

Grossman, chairman of the Council for a Livable World, goes even further. "I think this film will be the biggest boost for the civil defence programme," he said after seeing the film in Boston. "It implies that shelters protect people and that people survive." Other critics point out that the film involves a onemegaton bomb over Kansas City, rather than an all-out 20-megaton

No one is more aware than Meyer that the film makes some "best case" assumptions. "If you told this story accurately," he once said, "there'd be

When confronted by activists' comments about the film's "apolitical" plot, Meyer maintains that he meyer believed that his production would dislodge ideology. I never thought the film would do anything but reinforce the convictions that people brought to it. The people I'm trying to reach are the ones who haven't made up their minds...the ones who've barely thought about it."

There is no doubt that the film hits hard. At a recent screening at the headquarters of Physicians for Social Responsibility in Cambridge, Massachusetts, staff and colleagues from other peace groups sat frozen in their chairs watching the blast sequence. These are men and women who have read all the literature, heard all the speeches, weighed all the arguments. And they were shocked by what they

Others were moved for different reasons. The New York Post published an editorial under the headline "Why is ABC doing Yuri Andropov's work?", to which the conservative columnist Jeffrey Hart added: "The network has in effect made a $7m gift to the Soviet political enterprise."

Now, with just two weeks to go before the film is aired, further controversy is likely to rise. A source close to the film is about to reveal on television that the network has made another cut. In the original version, the tension in Europe that led to nuclear was was occasioned by the deployment of Pershing 2 missiles. Following rightwing charges that the film plays into Soviet hands, ABC has apparently removed all reference to the Pershings.

The debate has only just begun. It will be fascinating to see what happens the day after The Day After.

sideways look at the British way of life

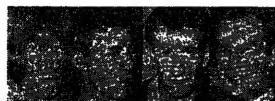

For a decade to have survivors it also needs casualties, or else the accolade is meaningless. To put it more crudely, you don't get Mick Jaggers without Brian Joneses, David Frosts without

I have heard it argued that the 1960s, which threw up such a profusion of both categories, actually mistimed their own entry; that the decade should properly have dawned with the accession of White Hot Wilson and not with the remnant of an old Tory dispensation. The argument may have a certain tiny currency insofar as the Sixties, viewed from across this huge and sudden gap of time, now seem as much a state of mind as a span of years. True, the US Sixties came in on cue with Kennedy, but then look what happened to them. And to Kennedy. Besides, it is an argument that came out of the 1970s, a mirthless and hungover epoch if ever there was one.

Because the nostalgia industry - with J.F.K. in the forefront this week - appears to be chasing its own tail with ever more vigour, one of the main survivors of the Sixties is the decade itself. For all its excess and narcissism, it was so full of liberty and expansion that the mere whiff of it has a poignant appeal. But the people who fashioned the age; what has become of them?

Let us first dispense with the prime ministers. The Two Harolds, and the peer who came between them; they can all be said to be survivors of the Sixties, even though Macmillan and Douglas-Home owed their preeminence to an earlier time. Broadcasters still beat a passage to their doors in the hope of some utterance that will put our present difficulties in a true perspective. Indeed Wilson, always a bit of a ham, now revels more than ever in the showbiz end of politics, doing Churchill imitations for the benefit of David Jacobs and the Any Questions?

David Jacobs - there's another. Whatever didn't happen to him? Surely he was the fellow who used to reach under his Juke Box Jury desk to activate the "hit" bell or the "miss" buzzer while the mystery guest sat behind the curtain to hear his single being rubbished. Now your deejay is chairing establishment panels with such politesse that you would never believe he could have had anything to do with that horrid old pop business.

The survivor is not to be confused with the endurer. A character like Jacobs belongs to the former group simply because he has, quite literally, outlived the period that engendered his first great popularity. The endurer on the other hand is the one who carries on plying his trade in the same way that he always did, without ever falling from public favour. If you accept this differentiation you would place the following in the endurer class: André Previn (he kept on conducting), Joan Sutherland (she kept on singing), Snowd n (he kept on snapping), Albert Finney (he kept on acting), Harold Pinter (he kept on writing), Rudolph Nureyev (he kept on dancing). The charitable would also include Geoff Boycott on the grounds that he kept on playing. These were only Sixties characters in the sense that this was when they made it. There was no intrinsic quality in them to make their success unthinkable in another decade.

What about John Osborne, a 1950s figure in his first incarnation but one whose angry young manhood carried on into the Sixties? (Remember Inadmissible Evidence, 1965, A Patriot For Me, 1965, and A Bond Honoured, 1966). On recent evidence, the young man's anger, flung in the face of the establishment, has given way to a middle-aged man's resentment, flung in the face of the establishment's domestic counterpart, his

And The Beatles; were they survivors or endurers? Both perhaps. The music has certainly lived on, as EMI and the playwright Willy Russell (John, Paul, George, Ringo and Bert) have found to their continuing enrichment. It is interesting to consider what may or may not have become of the Fab Four had it not been for the sure hand of producer George Martin (a survivor) and manager Brian Epstein (a casualty). George Harrison might have been just another lead guitarist in some short lived R and B band; Ringo Starr an office clown with a drum ... for singers and tailors, rich men and poor, footballers and furniture makers

Why we take undergraduates so seriously.

Quite simply, we need the best people available to help run today's Army. And we feel that someone who's spending three years working for a degree is likely to be a very good candidate. (Half of our young Officers are now graduates.)

As a jumor Officer, you'll command up to 30 men, and be responsible for them 24 hours a day. We'll also expect you to make sure that they're fit and fully trained. You'll have to learn to handle complex and technologically sophisticated

And if you were posted halfway round the world to find yourself ordered, on arrival, to organise a 3 day exercise for 30 men, you'd have to cope. With everything from planning the exercise to ensuring that the men have enough to eat.

No wonder that a commission in the Army is seen as the best management training you can have.
In your first or second year?

If you can apply this early, we can offer you something more than a job when you graduate. To repay your enthusiasm and commitment, we could sponsor you until you for 3 years' post graduate service.

If you were interested in a University Cadetship, though, you could be commissioned on probation as an Officer and earn at least £4,562 a year, while you're still studying. We won't expect you to march to lectures with your boots gleaming, but you'll have to attend a short course at Sandhurst during your long vacation. And serve for at least 5 years, after leaving University.

In your final year? As a graduate joining the Army, you'll immediately feel the benefit.

We'll give you three years' backdated seniority, so you'll start at a higher rank than usual, with a salary to match. Since vacancies are up this year by nearly 20%, you should apply right now

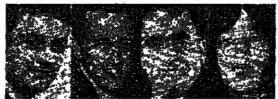

After you've graduated. If you're successful at the Regular Commissions Board, you'll spend seven of the hardest months of your life at Sandhurst, learning to be an Officer. Then you'll start work with us as a Lieutenant and, as a reflection of the responsibility you'll face, we'll pay you £8,314 a year. How to apply.

Visit your Careers Service Office, and pick up an Introduction Form. Through this, we'll arrange for one of our Liaison Officers to see you at your University or Polytechnic.

Among the politicos, essentially a durable crew, there are few more notable survivors than Barbara Castle and Denis Healey. Wilson's former Secretary of State for Social Services and holder of three major offices in his Sixties' government, is now into her fourth year as a Euro MP. As for Healey (middle name Winston, remember), Defence Secretary for the last six years of the Sixties, what a resurgence he has had. Having joined her father's business aged 25 in 1946, my hostess is indeed old enough to have been tutored at Miss Marple's knee. But although she is sometimes nicknamed as such, unlike the venerable spinster ("whitehaired, with a soft pink and white wrinkled face. dressed in rather dowdy black") Mrs Zena Scott-Archer is a picture of chic: smart skirt and blouse topped by lavishly piled hair, sprinkled with tasteful rings and necklaces. I am in the presence of an ex-chairman of the World Association of Detectives.

Mrs Scott-Archer's delivery is well in keeping with her woman-of-theworld image. I hear all about a garden fence dispute, where a Mr A and a Mr B are locked in heated conflict over the appearance of Mr A junior's ball in Mr B's territory. Then there is the time when Mrs

Scott-Archer has to obtain evidence from a prostitute who in the meantime has undergone a sex change. On another occasion our intrepid heroine leads a childsnatching expedition.

So what does the work involve? Professionals like Mrs Scott-Archer on the whole serve two purposes: they can assist the legal system, and they can pander to people's fantasies. In the first category, they act for a client, who is often a solicitor in, for example, seeking evidence, tracing missing persons.

The second type of client is the crank or passionate obsessive. One man rang up recently to confide "I know I'm being followed", and to prove the point took a tortuous route to London from North Wales

At the recent autumn forum of the Association of Private Investigators, one of the male representatives told her: always send a woman out if it's going to be tricky. You don't get any bull from a woman."

Some days later I am allowed a much longer stint as private detective's mate, being sent out with one of the staff of Wendy Madagan of the much larger firm, B E Madagan and Co. There is no mystique in this efficiently-run organization. Here the "tracing" of missing persons involves no application of what Hercule Poirot was wont to call "grey matter". The power of entrenched bureaucracies to ignore or to silence those who challenge their policies is most marked in totalitarian societies. Yet as Sir John Hoskyns has recently warned, democracies are similarly threatened when bureaucracy attempts to suppress criticism of inadequate but longcherished policies, particularly when it abandons its scruples. A striking recent example is the use of "leaks" from the Department of Education and Science (DES) to discredit research by the National Council for Educational Standards (NCES).

The report, Standards in English Schools, had posed a serious challenge to the major thrust of education policy of the past 20 years - the move towards a universal system of comprehensive schools.

There followed a series of "leaks". reinforced by widespread and sustained press coverage, damaging both the research and the researchers. More than 30 press reports appeared in the space of a month.

Most were allegations based on the 'leaks" that the research was "flawed" or 'discredited". They mentioned the contents of an appraisal of the research made by officials within the DES. Yet the researchers were never allowed to see the "leaked" report, and so were unable to defend themselves.

Why did the NCES's original research give such offence that attempts were made to discredit it by such underhand means? It analysed the 1981 examination results for 350,000 pupils from more than 2,000 schools. The results showed that children's chances of getting good results - so vital to their future careers - vary dramatically from school to school and even between schools of the same type in different areas. Big differences were found between different Local Education Authorities (LEAs) and between different types of school.

Comprehensive schools had worse examination results than grammar and secondary modern schools taken together. Secondary modern schools did particularly well. In the vital core subject of English they outperformed all the schools in nearly a third of the 57 LEAs studied, even though secondary modern schools normally have relatively few pupils who would be expected to pass Olevel examinations. Important differences were also found between departments within

These findings increase the accountability of teachers by giving independent and external evidence about teaching and learning. They help parents to make better decisions when choosing schools for their children. They help the public find betterinformed answers to questions about changes in schools - either locally in response to the fall in birth rate, or nationally in deciding overall education policies. Without adequate information both choice and policy are blind.

It can only have been the vital importance of the research findings - and the likelihood of similar studies each year to monitor trends - which led to such violations of the canons of scholarship, the obligations of office and accepted standards of behaviour.

What did the "leaks" point to as the main cause of criticism? They claimed that the sample was unrepresentative. This is not true. The DES confused the year in which the pupils entered school for the year in which they sat their examinations - a fundamental error which casts doubt on the whole DES appraisal.

It was also claimed that other measures of social class could be used. Ouite right. We used the only relevant recent data published by the DES at the time the research was done. We are willing to incorporate other social class data into future analyses as soon as the DES makes this information available.

Lastly, it was contended that our analyses, which give unadjusted examination results for schools of different types in different areas, are less useful than analyses involving correlation and multiple regression. This reflects a fundamental difference of approach. Regression analyses inevitably deal with adjusted data rather than actual examination results, and are notoriously difficult to set up and to interpret unambiguously. To pretend otherwise is to mislead and to mystify the non-specialist. We believe that the main emphasis should be on the actual results achieved by pupils, since it is by these real results that pupils ill be judged by employers or colleagues.

Whatever the reason why "leaks" were resorted to, the campaign has been effective. The NCES Examination Results Project is about to close. Funds are not forthcoming from the DES, and because of the denial of any effective right of reply doubts have understandably been raised in the minds of potential independent donors.

The silencing of dissident voices has an ultimate significance which far exceeds the destruction of a unique data base, the discrediting of the findings and the denial of their importance for the future of education. It is proof that a campaign of leaks and smears can be more effective than open debate, and that anonymous bureaucrats who resort to such means can effectively silence those who challenge them. Without honest debate, democracy will not flourish.

That such a campaign should have emanated from a great department of state like the DES is a matter of public interest and concern. In 1976 Viscount Eccles, a former Secretary of State for Education, told the House of Lords: "You cannot trust that great department any longer It is a very sad thing for an ex-minister to say." It seems that this is still true.

The aptly named Short Money

When I ran into him the other day. Jeff Rooker was carrying, not to say weighed down by, a massive bundle of documents. The Oil Taxation Bill", he told me. The Labour MP for Perry Barr, Birmingham, had been assembling material relating to this new legislation, about which be will have to speak in the House of Commons on Wednesday. Until last week, Jeff Rooker was an Opposition front bench spokesman on social security. Now he has been appointed to the team shadowing Treasury ministers. The Oil Taxation Bill is his first assignment.

The Treasury minister responsible for this legislation has no doubt also been spending some time in preparation for Wednesday's debate. His private office will have collated background material for him. They will also have asked the appropriate group of civil servants to draft him a speech. If he wishes he can simply get up in the Commons and read out the speech, having previously done little more than look it through and study additional documentation in his more than the speech and study additional documentation in his speech. case an MP intervenes in his speech and asks a question. He can even get away with declining to give way to his interupter, or with giving way and, if he does not know the answer to the question, promising to write to the member concerned with the requested information.

On Wednesday morning, if he has any doubts about any of the issues covered by the Bill, he can call into his large and well-equipped office, two or three minutes walk away from the Palace of Westminster. reasury officials who are some of the country's greatest experts on the subject. Immediately prior to the debate, in his conveniently situated office in the House of Commons building, he can ask for last-minute briefing. Right up to the moment he gets up to speak, he can send his parliamentary private secretary to the civil servants' box, on the floor of the chamber itself, and they will pass him any further information he

All Jeff Rooker has is himself. He has to discover what relevant material to read. He has to mug it up, either at home, during a weekend when he will have multifarious constituency duties, or back in his poky little office in the Commons. He has to draft his own speech. He has to master the subject sufficiently to be able to cope with interventions from any other MPs, including the minister himself.

Jeff Rooker will do all this, and do it extraordinarily well, since he is more than a match for any member of the Government and a whole collection of civil servants into the bargain. However, the imbalance is massive between the minister's lavish support and the do-it-yourself efforts of the Opposition spokes.

It may be thought that this is quite fair. After all, the minister is quite fair. After all, the minister is required to administer, to govern the country. All the Opposition representative has to do is to make a speech. Yet what that Opposition spokesman says is part of governing the country too. Together with the speeches of other MPs in the debate, his speech is an essential part of the democratic process. of holding the government accountable for its actions, of making sure that ministers do not use their huge majority to get away with things too easily.

That is why the machinery of a shadow administration has grown up in recent years. It has not always been so. Although, in the first post-war Parliament. Churchill had a shadow cabinet, it was only nebu-lously organized, with front-benchers assigned to deal with legislation in a casual manner. These days the growth and complexity of government have obliged the principal opposition party to match the government almost person for

With oil taxation Bills of fiendish difficulty, with rate support grant legislation that is equally complicated, not to mention the mind-boggling intricacies of such matters as social security benefits, defence policy and information technology, specialization is inevitable and essential. However, the sheer toil in mastering such subjects can be enormous.

All members of Parliament, back bench as well as front bench, are inadequately serviced. The sums of money provided to enable them to do their constituency work and brief themselves for their parliamentary duties are disgracefully puny. The minuscule staffs who work long hours for them a rectangle as exercising hours for them - perhaps a secretary and a shared research worker - are insufficiently recompensed. Following an initiative from the Labour government in 1974, what is known as the Short Money (named after the then Leader of the House, Edward Short) is now allocated to help opposition parties. Though better than nothing it too comes nowhere near providing sufficient funds for any of these parties to function efficiently. Government today is too big for an Opposition forced to operate on a shoe-string.

There will, fortunately, always be people like left Rooker prepared to do the detailed work that their assignments entail. However, in failing to provide him and his counterparts with the necessary resources, the nation is treating the democratic process in a stingy and niggardly manner.

How will the Grenada setback affect the Cubans?

Quiet Castro considers what to do now

Yesterday Cuba celebrated El Domingo Rojo - Red Sunday - with the annual undertaking of a morning's extra work by more than 2,000,000 people, one fifth of the population. Bank clerks put in shifts from 8am to 2pm; dockers in Havana spent the morning unloading Russian freighters; workers in the sugar refineries repaired machin-ery in time for the coming harvest, Red Sunday is an extension of the system which finds every Cuban working two Saturdays a month and many of them volunteering for extra duties in the evenings and at weekends. This year it has gained extra impetus from the events of the past formight, which have confirmed the majority of Cubans in their carefully nourished belief that only an energetic devotion to patriotic duties will keep the Yankee menace at bay. "Let us transform into productivity the sadness and indignation inspired by the imperialist aggression," they were urged by the CTC, their workers' federation.

Not all the responses to the Grenada crisis are so straightforwardly resolved. Many people have spent a great deal of time during the past two weeks attempting to decipher the message in the lines round Fidel Castro's eyes,

What does it signify that genuinely virulent anti-American rhetoric, at both government and street levels, was sustained for only 24 hours after Castro's press conference the night after the invasion.

His sobriety was certainly appropriate to the arrival of the wounded, but something more extrovert might have been expected on the other occasions from the man who made the revolution and who regularly held crowds a million strong in the palm of his hand for five or six hours while he recited statistics and taught them slogans.

It has not been a good time for him. While there are certainly moral gains to be enjoyed from the US action in Grenada, an enormous investment has been wiped away. Castro has lost whatever Grenada cost in terms of material and manpower, he has lost a good friend in Maurice Bishop, and he has lost a useful second power base at the other end of the Caribbean, a place at which "friends" from other Caribbean and Latin American countries could meet and a useful channel for funds and other aid to sympathetic movements.

As an internal strategy, this stands every chance of succeeding. Although, after 25 years, true revo-On top of that he has seen his lutionary ardour has abated in many

Cuban breasts, what one western diplomat here called "the patriotic nerve" is still strong enough to act as a surrogate. Externally, Castro can choose from among several responses. If he is looking for revenge, he may increase his support for the Salvadorean guerrillas or look for other movements to assist in the area, such as Colombia's M-19 (unlikely. since that country's president was such a helpful go-between in the repairiation of prisoners from Grenada) or the Bolivian leftists who have already, it is believed, received some training in Cuba. He might seek to exploit the new splits between various Caricom countries, or he might apply to his Russian sponsors for action to make life difficult for the US in some more distant trouble spot.

The problem with such escalating responses - and here is where Castro's underplaying manner may be significant - is that Cuba wants to be seen as a responsible, mature member of the Latin American community: a difficult feat in the light of its continuing commitment to the spread of revolutionary socialism throughout the Third World. If, however, Castro is to persuade western nations to enter into the deals which would bring him hard currency and put the Cuban economy on a sounder basis. he must appear sensible and statesmanlike. With the US indefinitely closed off from economic partnership, Cuba is looking for friends in the West and is particularly hopeful of establishing trading links with the socialist government in various parts of Europe. Spain has already responded; Mitterrand's France has yet to match up to Castro's initially high expectations. A better public image would help - and the general European outcry against President Reagan's invasion will have done no harm at all - but it is hard to see this material necessity taking precedence over Castro's overwhelming desire to free the rest of the Americas from US economic and political domina-

Many of the criticisms that roll around the organization are, no doubt, unfair or exaggerated. They often reflect wounded sensibilities. What is clear is that morale within the company is desperately low.

Ward has only been in the post for few weeks, so neither he nor Taubman can yet sensibly be blamed for what is happening at Sotheby's. Indeed, their first move has been to give all the staff a substantial pay rise, which should have cheered them up.

Curiously, during the last few months, while Taubman's takeover has been a near or total certainty, some aggressive decisions have been made over the demotion or removal of expert staff. It is hard not to believe that jockeying for position in the new Taubman Sotheby's has not had something to do with it.

Such actions, however, may have been shortsighted. Both Taubman and Ward have made it clear that they regard the expertise of Sotheby's staff as the single, crucial asset that makes the purchase of the company worthwile,

They have also revealed the outline of their future strategy for Sotheby's. Around the existing company they intend to build a much larger service company, playing a significant role in the fields of insurance, finance and property. The idea is to use the firm's fund of knowledge of art and its value in a variety of new ways, and to capitalize on existing contracts among the rich and famous. This is a new kind of creature altogether. In the past, art auctioncering firms have either been run as partnerships, or at least behaved as if they were. Both Sotheby's and Christie's only went public in the 1970s and have continued to think and act in the old mould. Phillips remains a private company. The Taubman Sotheby's intends to treat auctioneering as one arm of a big service corporation.

It is not only Sotheby's staff who are anxious to know whether and how this will work. Christies, which says that it intends to carry on auctioneering in its traditional way. is watching with anxious eyes. The art-dealing community is also seriously concerned. Christie's chief worry is that Taubman will use profits generated in other arms of the business to subsidize the auctioneering side, thus cutting commission rates to non-viable levels. The dealers are anxious that the Taubman Sotheby's will be offering such a package of services to private collectors that they will take to buying exclusively at auction and cut out the middle man. That, indeed, would be no more than a continuation of an existing trend.

For the already battered staff at Sotheby's, the chief concern is that they will be allowed to continue making the best job they can of art auctioneering and not be pressed in contrary directions by the demands of new branches of the business. Most of them believe that there will be big changes in the company over the next year or so. They just hope that Taubman gets it right and peace is allowed to break out again.

But by heaven they frighten me

Increasingly defence experts are saving that the arms race is about politics and psychology, and not any longer about quantifiable military might or technical know-how. The rationale behind this lies in making sure that everybody concerned is sufficiently terrified to take no risks. Thus, alas, the state of constant fear is the price of our survival.

It is not a satisfactory long-term view of the human condition, though as a transitional stage - in the infancy, so to speak, of the nuclear age - it may be the only practical way of keeping the peace. The theory of deterrence, however, works only if everybody is totally convinced that nuclear war would mean utter devastation. And that is why I have always thought that the civil desence fantasy (just wrap youself in a paper bag) is even more dangerous than the unilateralist fantasy (nakedness is our only

What then is one to make of the story I heard a few days ago which I recount here with some fuzziness of detail out of respect to my informant, but essentially as I heard

t from the horse's mouth? The horse in question is a member of a parish "nuclear defence committee" in a small village somewhere in the British Isles. The village lies, for civil defence purposes, within the purview of a good solid Conservative authority which takes such things seriously: it has appointed a vigorous ex-army type to co-ordinate plans, and this individual has gone about the county identifying in each parish good men and true who can be trusted to use their initiative in making sure that somebody, at least, is ready for the holocaust. An appropriate chairman in this particular parish having been thus identified, he set about hand-picking other members of the committee. It was not done by the normal democratic methods, of course, but by extremely confidential cloak-anddagger approaches - hoarse whispers at the far end of the bar in the village pub, a few muttered words in the spinney at dawn, and so on.

The committee, once convened, set about devising its emergency plans. First, a fortunately capacious air-raid shelter built for the Second World War and now derelict, was to be enlarged and strengthened, as far as possible in secret (though how that was to be done in a small village I am not clear). Second, it was to be well-stocked with food; since many of the committe members were farmers that was not very difficult. Third (and here a war-film over), the committee realized it would have to defend the village all safely bedded down in the renovated bunker - against desper-Sale Room Correspondent | ate and possibly armed marauders. | GLC/. | to be armed with a shotgun. And though some members of committee, rural folk though they were, were unequipped in this respect, others providentially had more than one gun and so could share them about Discussion then proceeded along the following lines: the greates number of reckless marauders would be likely to come from the nearest big city, which would either receive a direct hit or be thrown rapidly into chaos by the disruption of services and supplies. The city lay the other side of a big river across which by great good fortune there was only one bridge for miles. The nuclear defence committee hit on the brilliant idea that the defence force in the bunker would have an easier time of it if the bridge itself were defended. (Why the idea of dynamiting the bridge was not considered I do not know, but I must be faithful to the story I was told and it was not included in that.) What was decided was that as soon as the alert sounded a contingent should be dispatched to the bridge with their shotguns and instructions to let nobody across.

Here they hit a snag. A few members of the committee in fact worked in the city and pointed out that - if everything happened very quickly as it was likely to in the case of a nuclear attack - they would themselves be trying to get back across the bridge. What means of identification should they use to make sure they didn't get shot by mistake? The committee are still busy devising a suitable logo for the car windscreen

Now I do assure readers of The Times that I have no reason at all to disbelieve this story. But is it an solated instance of grown-up schoolboys playing at war-games, or is it happening in every village in the land? Does it mean that when we innocent city-dwellers, rambling across the fields and dreaming of the tranquil rural life, encounter barbed wire and a "Keep Out" notice, we can assume the worst? Underneath that charming village church is there a crypt stuffed with grain and grenades, butter and guns - to be used against us when the time

Well somehow I don't think it has come to that. But, all the same, the thought that as I close my eyes tonight the same English moon and stars will shine over unknown numbers of nuclear defence committee fantasists weaving dreams in which (accompanied no doubt by Jack Hawkins in a balaclava helmet and John Mills holding the darkened torch), they mine the local footpaths scriptwriter seems to have taken as the four-minute warning sounds. makes me even more uneasy than the imminent arrival of the cruise missile.

This week a further meeting in Athens of the Community's foreign and finance ministers will try to pave the way for a solution at the EEC's summit there in December, So far as Britain is concerned, the special problem of our own inequitable contribution to the Com-munity's revenue is now subsumed in the larger crisis. The one cannot be solved without a solution to the other, and this provides the principal hope of settling the grievance which has soured Britain's relationships with its partners and kept alive the stultifying unpopularity of the EEC with British public opinion.

Either event would bring matters to a head and since it is in Britain's interest that they should be brought to a head quickly neither need be a cause of great distress.

In the end, the Government's strength lies in the simple fact that every other member state knows that there is no chance of the British Parliament's being asked to agree to an increase in the VAT element of "own resources" to the new ceiling of 1.4 per cent suggested by the Commission, except as part of a wider deal which puts Britain's own contributions on a fairer basis. This is itself a sign of significant change of attitude within virtually all the member ment for the future financial arrangements of the Community. It may not be achieved at the Athens summit; a financial crisis may be needed to precipitate it. But a settlement is in everyone's interest. For lack of it, the accession of Spain and Portugal to the Community has been held up and there is no serious possibility of tackling the growing dissatisfaction with the way in which the Community is working industrially and financially. So long as bickering over the nature of the annual budget continues, the growing usefulness of the Community as a concerted Euro-voice in international affairs is put at risk.

Perhaps most important of all, the continuing failure to find a dilemma exacerbates the unpopularity of the Community in this country and encourages unconstructive and unrealistic fantasies of withdrawal which only lead to misunderstanding of Britain's position. That is why Yet it is just as likely, if not firmness by Mrs Thatcher in pursuit of a lasting solution which finally settles Britain's can do the Community as well as her own country. The Government has shown itself to be alive to the fact that the Community is an evolving and not a static institution; the other members must be constructive too.

It could not rest upon "joint sovereignty" in any full meaning of that expression. Not only is that far beyond the range of Unionist consent, but it could not conceivably operate between states, the Republic of Ireland and the United Kingdom, which have such very different conceptions of their respective places in the world. The notion of joint sovereignty could be given no more than a strictly limited and functional value. Even then, and supposing Dublin was still interested in the idea under those conditions, Unionists would need a lot of persuading that the scheme could deliver the other half of what it is supposed to deliver, namely satisfaction of the nationalist element in Northern Ireland sufficient to reconcile it to the institutions and authority of the state and sufficient to cause it to shut out revolutionary violence. This is looking much farther down the road than either principal will be inclined to look today. Dr FitzGerald will argue that the political and economic health of Northern Ireland can only be restored by giving the Republic more standing in the matter. He will be reminded that the standing the Republic can be given in the matter is circumscribed by the requirement of the consent of the Unionist majority for any change in their constitutional position, a requirement he acknowledges without apparent reservation. If a passage can be found between those mutually restricting premises the prime ministers will no doubt be happy to have it explored.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

SAS to the rescue of 'mini-states'?

From Sir Philip Goodhart, MP for Beckenham (Conservative)

Sir, In the course of the last twenty years, successive Governments in this country, both Labour and Conservative, have given full inde-pendence to nearly twenty ministates - some with a population of less than 100,000 - who cannot make adequate provision for their own defence.

Three of these mini-states, Grenada, the Seychelles and Zanzibar, have already been hi-jacked by small bands of armed men, not much larger than the gang that carried out the great train robbery. In a fourth state, the Gambia, a semi-mutiny/semi-coup by the para-military police two and a half years ago was checked by the fortuitous presence of a couple of SAS soldiers.

followed by the massive intervention of the Senegalese army.

After the relief invasion of Grenada, your proposal (November 4) that the West should now "develop a coherent and multilateral approach to further rescues" is certainly right, and the Foreign Secretary's preliminary proposals for such a coherent approach, made in the House of Commons on November 3, were rather more positive than you have yet acknow-ledged.

It seems probable that the heads of governments of our East Caribbean Commonwealth partners will now look to the United States for security guarantees. But our own forces have more experience of limited internal security operations than the Americans have. In particular, the SAS seem well suited for this sort of role. The extra cost to our defence budget should be minimal, for what is needed is a mini-commitment to meet mini-threats to mini-states. Of course there are political risks involved. We do not want to find ourselves committed to the defence of regimes which have become harsh or oppressive, but there could be a de facto understanding that any use of external security forces would be followed in a matter of weeks or months by the holding of free

For many years there has been an agreed policy for dealing with airliners that have been hi-jacked. Now we need an agreed policy for dealing with mini-states that have been hi-jacked. Yours faithfully,

PHILIP GOODHART, House of Commons. November 4.

A little inflation

From Mr W. R. Eyres Sir, Gayyn Davies (feature, October

29) is right to question the Chancellor's ultimate aim of price stability, the object all sublime which he will achieve in time.

It will not necessarily be achieved, however, by the loss of a further one and a quarter million jobs. Such jobs would almost certainly be lost mainly from the manufacturing sector of the economy and that would have medium-term inflation-ary, rather than disinflationary, implications.

But the common fallacy is surely to suppose that a particular rate of inflation, be it nil or 5 per cent, can be an overriding policy objective. Indeed, it is worth quoting John Stuart Mill on the infirmities and dangers of representative govern-

The exclusive pursuit of one good object, apart from some other which should accompany it, ends not in excess of one and defect of the other, but in the decay and loss even of that which has been exclusively cared for. Yours faithfully,

W. R. EYRES, 27 Grove Terrace, NWS. October 29.

From Professor D. R. Myddelton Sir. Gavyn Davies was wrong before about inflation and he's wrong again now. He is not entitled to assert that the rise in unemployment since 1979 is the "cost" of the fall in inflation since then. Does he seriously believe that if inflation were now running at its 1979 level unemployment would be only 1,500,000? A cumulative inflation rate of 5 per cent a year is not "low". It creates uncertainty, invites damaging political intervention, and seriously distorts company accounts. Nor would the inflation rate be likely to remain steady at that level. Hence the Chancellor of the Exchequer's objective of zero inflation - honest money - is highly desirable.

Yours faithfully, D. R. MYDDELTON, Cranfield School of Management, Cranfield, Bedford. October 29.

Rate for the job

From the Chairman of the Audit Commission for Local Authorities in England and Wales

Sir, Your report, "Rich rewards for members of the cash curb quango" (November 3), that the Audit Commission is to pay its own staff up to twice the salaries paid in town halls and well above those in the Civil Service makes an attractive headline. It is, however, wrong.

The Audit Commission will be paying its employees no more and no less than is required for it to be able to attract and retain people of the calibre required to audit over £30bn of public expenditure For the record, I should like to take this opportunity to make it real malaise; taxation policy.

The 1976 "succession" legislation,

From the Editor of British Farmer landowners took advantage of the and Stockbreeder

Sir, My old friend, Hugh Gardner (November 2), seeks evidence that the 25-year-old criteria by which arbitrators shall determine rent properly payable by tenant farmers have resulted in unfairly high rent levels. I fear retirement from a distinguished career in the Ministry of Agriculture may have left him out of touch with unpleasant realities.
The formation of a separate

Tenant Farmers' Association two years ago, with the support of some well known and highly efficient farmers, was a direct result of rents (whether determined by arbitrators or settled in anticipation of such determinations) greater than a reasonably competent tenant could afford, while still leaving him with a fair return for his work, management and risk capital.

The rent formula which both Mr Gardner and a group of leading estate agents whose letter you published the previous day are defending was fundamentally defec-tive in 1958 and remains so now. It was based on earlier legislation governing rent settlements for commercial premises where a free open market is a reality; if demand strengthens new commercial premises can be built to satisfy it. There was no need to worry about isolating and discounting scarcity value - as Parliament found it necessary to do when legislating in 1965 for the determination of fair rents for residential premises.

Even in 1958 supply and demand could not operate for farm tenancies. New farms were not being created; and a substantial number of existing ones were being amalgamated, with strong Government backing after 1967, into more viable units.

To base rents for sitting tenants on the assumption of a free market which has no substance in reality is bound to produce excessively high

Mr Gardner argues that the introduction of a specific reference to the productive value of the land is unnecessary because it is already subsumed by the duty to take all relevant factors into account. If that is so, and both be and the land agents are contending that arbitrators already do take ample account of the productivity and the potential profitability of the farm, why all the fuss?

If it is not so, are the land agents (as distinct from their own professional body which has supported the new formula) arguing that an arbitrator should ignore the pro-ductive value and base rents more firmly on a fictitious open market?

Classroom blind spot

From Mr Harry Hochfelder

Sir, I see that it has required a National Institute for Economic and Social Research study ("A German lesson for our schools", The Times, October 31) to find out that our education system is streets behind that of West Germany, a fact which has been evident to any casual observer for several decades. If the net had been cast a little wider the NIESR study could have also established that we lag behind the educational systems of most other advanced industrial countries, particularly Japan. Over 2m of the adult population of Britain are illiterates. Moreover, we have until now provided vocational training only to a small minority of school leavers. Is it not quite obvious that there is bound to be a causal link between that and our low productivity and lack of competitiveness?

What puzzles me far more than

Beinn Eighe plans

From Mr Malcolm Murchison Sir, I was interested to read the letter from Professor Harding (October 31) about the hydroelectric project at Loch Maree.

Professor Harding's letter left some things unsaid. The area was recently designated as a national scenic area, the nearest thing in Scotland to a national park, on account of the remarkable beauty of the mountain scenery. The views up the Gradie river towards the summit peaks of Beinn Eighe are justly famous as some of the most splendid in Scotland, yet the hydroelectric board plans to build a

The board has freedom to investigate hydroelectric resources all over the north of Scotland. It knows perfectly well that there are other areas of less scenic value than those round Loch Maree.

Did it investigate the potentiality of such areas for water power before deciding to assess the viability of a hydroelectric scheme at Loch Marec? If it did, we would like to hear details. If it did not, we would like to know why. Yours faithfully, MALCOLM MURCHISON,

Home truths on pensions policy

From Mr Stephan Schattmann Sir. As a rule, ministers do not go out of their way to refer to trends in other EEC countries in support of their policies. But the Chancellor of the Exchequer appears to have started a new trend. Recently he referred to the delay of pension increases in Germany (and France too) as examples of retrenchment of social protection expenditure, adding that "here at home, too, hard choices will have to be faced".

Clearly, if a country as well off as Germany, we appear to be told, has to trim pensions Britain cannot run away from reality - to borrow the Prime Minister's phrase. Yet this is what the Chancellor seems to have

The delay in pension increases is announced a year ago. The increase due on January I was postponed for six months and has been paid since July I. It is in fact the second time a German Government has taken such a step - the Social Democratic Liberal coalition did exactly the same in 1977.

Measured as a percentage of net earnings, the level of pensions is unlikely to have changed this year compared with 1982, when it was over 65 per cent. It would thus not be very much below the all-time peak of just over 66 per cent recorded in 1977. In this country the standard pension represents 22.9 per standard pension represents 22.9 per cent of manual earnings or 16.8 per cent of non-manual earnings. In cash terms and at current exchange rates Britain's standard pension of £32.85 compares with about £105 to £110 in the Federal Republic.

Whereas Mrs Thatcher and her ministers are determined to lower the fiscal burden, German Conservatives are far less dogmatic in this respect. When Chancellor Kohl came to power last year he cut the trade tax but increased VAT by 1 per cent and introduced a 5 per cent levy on higher incomes to stimulate capital formation, repayable after two years.

And earlier this year a DM5.5bn package was introduced to substantially reduce the current deficit in the pension account. This had been incurred in 1982 (after surpluses in 1980 and 1981) through a decline in contributions and a deliberate lowering of the contribution scale by 1/2 per cent to offset an increase in unemployment insurance to some extent. More than two-thirds of the package represents more contri-butions and the balance an adjust-ment in the calculation of the annual pension increase.

German Conservatives, it seems; have not yet wholly exorcised Keynesian thinking. because of those who are supposed to be leading our industry. Dual-key control

From Professor Neville G. Brown Sir, Important though the sovereignty issue may be, there is a further strong argument in favour of the "dual-key" control of the 464 nuclear cruise missiles to be deployed in Britain or eisewhere in Nato Europe. It is that this genre of weapons is potentially dual-purpose. In other words, the simplicity, dexterity and accuracy of these "flying bombs" will commend them spot it for such a long time. Could a study be commissioned to find out why? Is it insularity, conceit for pre-nuclear attack and reconnaissance, especially as manned aircraft become more vulnerable in hostile obvious longer than everybody else?

Anne Sofer is wrong in trying to make "citism" the culprit. We need Aiready, in fact, a consensus is emerging among Nato's military to the effect that several thousand ground-launched cruise missiles (GLCM) will in due course be needed (along with very many Pershings) for various non-nuclear tasks. Indeed, a leading US analyst has spoken of 100,000 cruise missiles of one kind or another eventually being required for one purpose or another.

Needless to say, too, many of the additional weapons will be similar to or even identical with those earmarked for nuclear delivery.

Surely, then, a firm distinction will have to be drawn between the management of those GLEM that have been reserved for nuclear purposes and those which have not. Otherwise the prospects both for assured crisis control and for arms reduction dialogues could seriously vitiated. Yours sincerely,

Church and remarriage

From Mr and Mrs T. A. Davies Sir, Your leader on "Repeatable marriage vows" (October 31) and much of the discussion on this subject seems to us to miss the main point. Marriage, according to the Prayer Book, involves a vow of sharing "until death do us part". This is marriage.

We are unable to see how the same vow can be repeated with a second partner while the first is still alive. Marriages, of course, do break down and a further form of partnership may well merit the blessing of the Church. But since any second ceremony cannot honestly include a second vow of permanence while the first is patently unfulfilled, it would seem illogical to speak of repeatable vows. Such a ceremony is not marriage: some other name should be found. Yours faithfully, TIMOTHY DAVIES. KATHLEEN M. DAVIES. Derrynane, 7 Maple Close, Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire.

One of the most treasured possessions is the Newgate Knocker, which hung for nearly 150 years on the door of Newgate Gaol (the court stands on the site of the old prison). The iron knocker has found its own place in history with countless Cockney mothers reaching for the soap as they scold grubby children for being "as black as Newgate's knock-er".

Science report Synthetic flu vaccine confined to laboratory

The latest results of research into a universal vaccine which would protect against all strains of influenza look promising, according to a report in Science 83. Teams in Britain, the United States and Australia are carrying out laboratory experiments.

But even if the new idea for making a synthetic vaccine are shown to be on the right lines, it could be 10 years before a substance is available for public immunization pro-TI SIII

Fifty years after the first influenza virus was isolated at the National Institute for Medical Research in London. the mention of influenza continues to cause shudders among medical scientists, and with good reason. It is a family of viruses which appear to abide by no rules. They change their molecular make-up frequently to overcome the body's defence system. By exchanging genes with other viruses on rare occasions, an influenza virus can create new and lethal hybrids, sweeping through susceptible populations. Indeed, the same virus that

The truth about Privatising British Telecom.

The privatising of British Telecom has stirred up political controversy. Leaving the political issue aside, there is now an urgent need to clarify the points below in the interests of truth and the customer.

Q. Will rural services be reduced?

A. No. Our policy of service and improvement in rural areas is being, and will continue to be, vigorously pursued. In any case the new Telecommunications Licence to be granted by Parliament will guarantee them.

Q. Will residential phone charges shoot up?

A. No. We shall continue our existing successful policy of price restraint. In addition, the Licence will provide a specific assurance for customers in this respect relating increases in charges to the retail price index.

Q. Will emergency services be cut back?

A. No. We are strongly committed to them. Their continuance - however unprofitable - is guaranteed by the Licence.

Q. Will telephone kiosks be phased out?

A. No. Their provision is safeguarded even in unprofitable areas, except against strictly defined criteria in the Licence.

This is the first time in British history that the provision of many telecommunications services will be required by law - a far stronger safeguard than has previously existed. British Telecom is already one of the most technologically advanced telecommunications systems in the world. It has every intention of going on getting better and adapting to compete in the world market-place. We shall always have the interests of you, our customer, at the forefront of our thinking.

TELECOM Keeping the customer informed.

Profit of Ism expected after Lucas losses

Lucas Industries publishes its results for the year to July 31 this morning with the market looking for pretax profits in the region of £5m, after last year's losses of £20.2m. There is concern, however, that despite the recovery from halfway losses of £5.2m the dividend may not be maintained. Last year the total payout was 8.6p.

The fear is that Mr Robert

The strongest part of the business is the aerospace division, where the outlook is encouraging and Lucas is beginning to feel some return from its heavy investment in new plant and equipment in

Instead estimates of public sector borrowing (including town halls and state industries) are to be published each month instead of once a quarter, starting on November

But it remains an interesting week for economy watchers. Lucas has important con- Factory-gate prices in October, tracts for programmes like the released today, are expected to show a rise of about 0.5 per cent, leaving the annual rate little changed at around 5.5 per cent, which suggests that manufacturing companies are continuing to absorb steep increas-

This bodes well for retail price inflation, published on Friday. Most analysts expect a rise of about 0.5 per cent, leaving the 12-monthly increase to October between 5 and 5.25 per cent, well on target for a rate of under 5.5 per cent by

Tomorrow, the Bank of England releases its provisional

Close attention will also be paid to the Candian insurance market, where there is some sign of a return to the ratecutting which had dented profits there in recent years. On Thursday, high technology group Applied Computer Techniques should manage pretax profits of £1.8m at the interim stage against £790,000 losses last time. Sales of the Sirius computer have levelled at about 1,250 a month with encouraging volumes achieved in the dull summer market. This would be enough to achieve a doubling of volume from Sirius compared with the first half of 1982.

Crown Agents sentenced but not yet beheaded

Senior managers of the Crown Agents, the 150 year-old organization which has been threatened by a sudden financial crisis, will today step up the campaign to save the organization with a direct appeal to Sir Geoffrey Howe, the Foreign Secretary.

Mr Peter Graham, the senior Crown Agent, and Mr Alan Frood, the chief executive, are scheduled to meet the Foreign Secretary. They will outline the survival plan which they claim will allow the Agents to return to financial viability

And the state of t

The plan involves selling the freehold of the organization's grandiose Georgian head office in Millbank, London, cutting back its employees from 1,200 to about 860. and streamlining its diverse activities on a more "Commercial" basis. The organization is also asking the Government to waive interest payments on money lent as starting capital four years ago, when it was reorganized as a semiautonomous corporation.

Sir Geoffrey has already been told by his officials that the alternative to endorsing the survival plan is to wind up the Crown Agents, a course urged on him by some backbench MPs.

This would involve some of the Agents' activities, such as supervision of colonial pensions, being transferred to government, some other activities being privatized and the rest being abandoned.

The Agents' future has been under threat since the Sultan or Brunei abruptly withdrew the lucrative business of managing his £3,500m investment portfolio several months ago.

The Agents, leaders aware of criticisms that the organization is anachronistic, have been campaigning vigorously in recent weeks, winning the support of, among others the CBI. A Government decision to endorse survival plan or close the organization is expected within weeks.

Daunting demand for banks' options

The foreign currency options schemes offered by Barclays and Hambros Banks

The two banks believe they have winners. Hambros' director of foreign exchange, Mr John Haywood, said that, within five days of telling clients about the scheme at the beginning of last week, "We have had an extraordinarily large number of inquires from corporate customers."

Foreign currency options are now competing with the conventional foreign exchange market, which companies have always used to protect themselves against future exchange rate movements.

Barclays International set up a trial options scheme in January, by filling the gap left by the tender-to-contract insurance offered by the Export Credits Guarantee Department, It deals below ECGD's £5m minimum limit and works in currencies other than American dollars, Deutschemarks and yen for a premium of

A market set up to deal in foreign currency options in Philadelphia last December is said to have run into liquidity problems - and New York banks have stepped in to offer "over the counter" option schemes using their own

Now all active foreign exchange banks in London are considering doing it.

Barclays wants to be seen to be offering something a bit cheaper and more flexible than Philadelphia. It deals in strike prices which move five cents either side of the day's dollar spot rate. Barclays is thinking of probably three cents either side.

The cost of an option at Barclays is about 3 per cent of the contract. It will tailor contracts more to customers' individual needs, with the fee more competitively priced according to the currency chosen and the option period.

Unlike forward markets, which carry the advantage of being much more precise, these bank options do not lock purchasers into a contract. Purchasers have the right not to buy if their own commercial negotiations fall through. Moreover - and this is their greatest appeal - they are not denied windfall profits should currencies move more favourably than expected.

The Dubliners smell gas

Amateur investors on the Dublin stock exchange who have been courting a considerable financial hangover through their enthusiasm for companies who may, or may not, have found oil in the Celtic Sea, are again letting their imagination run They are now backing their belief in major gas discoveries. Atlantic Resources has seen its shares rise from a low of 30 Irish pence in March in Dublin to 950 Irish pence. In London they rose 50p last week to 685p. Arran Energy moved up 5p to 59p and Bula Reserves 242p to 27p.

The shares are still being bought mainly by small investors. The Irish Government is concerned about the number of second mortgages raised in the Dublin area and Mr John Bruton, the Irish industry and energy minister, is advising caution.

Leading brokers Wood Mackenzie also takes the Bruton line. They point out that it is extremely rare to discover the potential of an oilfield from the results of the one well that caused the original excitement in the summer.

A second appraisal well is now being drilled by Gulf which with Atlantic Resources is following oil industry pratice in refusing to make any official comment been done. Gulf is understood actually to have changed its system of communications from rig to shore. Suspicions that a CB radio had been used to intercept messages about initial drilling reports have not been completely discounted.

It is all enough to bring a smile to Saudi faces. A Saudi-controlled Irish company, Competrol Establishment, owned by Mr Suliman Olyan, acquired a major stake in Atlantic Resources when it picked up an option to buy the shares from Fitzwilton, a company owned by Dr Tony O'Reilly. Dr O'Reilly as every rugby man knows is chief executive of Heinz, chairman of the United States-based Ireland Fund, and chairman of Atlantic Resources.

 $\gamma_{-\frac{n-1}{2}-\frac{n}{2}}\frac{q}{q}$

There is now an excellent chance that the Government will deliver a stable financial framework for growth, but the feeble state of manufacturing industry may impair the ability of the economy to take advantage of it, according to Mr Walter Eltis, of Oxford Univerin a circular for the stockbroker Rowe & Pitman, Mr Eltis says the rate of return on capital in manufacturing may be half what it was in the 1960s, while the capital stock has fallen sharply in the last couple of years as investment has lagged behind provision for depreciation.

"The condition from which it must revive is so depressed in relation to the past that a full recovery of this part of the economy may take time", Mr Eltis says. As a consequence, he eays, growth of 2½ per cent a year - less than the 3 per cent Mr Nigel Lawson, the Chancellor, expects this year - may well be the most that can be sensibly investment are unlikely to rise rapidly enough to compensate for a slowdown in consumer spending. However, pointing out that manufacturing represents only a quarter of the economy, Mr Eltis says growth of jobs in service industries may prevent unemployment rising further. "When industry begins to come right as well, unemployment will start to move back towards the more tolerable levels of the 1970s", he suggests. Agreement that growth is likely to slow next year comes from another stockbroker, Hoare Govett. It expects national output to expand by about 21-2 per cent in 1984 after 312 to 414 per cent this year, about 60 per cent of the package arguing that the Government will soon have to tighten credit tour trade out of Britain. New Allianz bid expected

Allianz Versicherungs is expected to announce details of an increased takeover offer for Eagle Star Holdings either today or tomorrow.

The decision to increase takeover terms from 500p for each Eagle share to match a rival 575p per share offer from BAT Industries, anticipates clearance for both bids by Mr Norman Tebbitt, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry.

Mr Tebbitt received the Office of Fair Trading's verdict on whether the bids should be referred for investigation by the Monopolies and Mergers Commission last Friday.

In the stockmarket, Eage's shares closed the week at 598p, above the BAT offer price in the belief that there would be no monopolies investigation

Interim Dividends for 1983 Scrip Dividends

The average last dealt prices of the Company's shares on the stock exchanges in Hong Kong on which the Company's shares are traded, for the five trading days up to and including 4th November, 1983 were:

Ashares

In a letter to shareholders from the Chairman dated 3rd October, 1983, it was announced that the directors had declared interim dividends on 23rd September, 1983 in respect of the year ending 31st December, 1983 of 31.0¢ per A share and 6.2¢ per Bishare and that the directors had resolved that, as to 30.0c per A share and 6.0¢ per B share, these dividends should take the form of scrip dividends to be satisfied by the issue of additional A and additional B shares respectively, but that shareholders should be able to elect to receive these dividends in cash in respect of all or part of their shareholdings. To ensure that the shares of the Company continue to be authorised investments for the purposes of the Trustee Ordinance (Cap. 29, Laws of Hong Kong), the balance of the dividends of 1.0¢ per A share and 0.2¢ per B share will be paid in cash. It was further announced that entitlements to fractional shares would be disregarded and the benefit thereof would accrue to the Company. Applying the average last dealt prices noted above, the number of new shares which shareholders will receive in respect of their existing shares for which elections to receive cash are not deposited with the Registrars in Hong Kong or with the Registrars' Agents in the United Kingdom by 11th November, 1983 will be calculated as follows:

For A shares: Number of new A shares to be received	=	Number of existing A shares	× ₁ 0·30 15·04
For B shares: Number of new B shares to be received	=	Number of existing B shares	× 0.06 2.38 and will be rounded down to the nearest whole number of new shares, fractional entitlements being disregarded.

Certificates for the new A and B shares in respect of the scrip dividends, which will rank parl passu with the existing issued shares of the Company, together with the dividend warrants in connection with the cash dividends of 1.0¢ per A share and 0.2¢ per B share, will be despatched to shareholders on 22nd

By the end of business at the weekend, bond futures were back to the levels of carly September. These levels in turn were way down from the May prices. The commodities markets are very depressed and have lost about half of the gains made, in the futures, between July and September. The gold and silver markets are in a very low state. Precious metals futures have been down

The Dow Jones industrial average on Friday came down very close to the 1,200 mark. A drop through that level would really unnerve the markets. By the week of October 26, the level of the banks' adjusted reserves" (as calculated by the Federal Reserve of St Louis) was $54.3bn. That compared with a level of $53.9bn in the week of April 6. In the last seven months, the annual rate of growth of the banks' "adjusted reserves" has been around 2 per cent. By contrast between August, 1982, and March, 1983, these 'adjusted reserves" rose over 12 per cent a year. Between early June and early November, the level of the "adjusted monetary base" rose only $3bu from $195bu to correspondingly slow. By the money and banks reserves freeze has evidently hit all the financial markets and the commodities markets.

There is no evidence as yet that the Federal Reserve intends to make any change in its policy. That is not likely to come until there is evidence of an actual slowdown in the growth of the US economy. By that time, the accumulated problems of the financial markets and the commodities markets will have laid the foundation for a more severe slowdown in US economic growth than the authorities have bargained for.

IAPAN AIR LINES INTRODUCES THE CLASS OF 84.

JAL EXECUTIVE CLASS

More leg room. More comfort. At no more than the normal economy fare.

From November 14th 1983, Japan Air Lines introduces its new Executive Class on the daily B747 flights on the Polar or Trans-Siberian routes.

For no more than the normal economy fare* the new Executive Class brings a new style of comfort to long-distance travel.

Replacing the present J and C business classes, it surpasses them both for sheer luxury.

There's more leg room with the seat pitch increased from 34 to 37 inches.

There's more shoulder room with only 8-abreast seating.

There's more space to sit back and relax with the recline angle of seats increased to 37.°

And there's a foot rest to complete your comfort.

The cabin service has an extra touch of class, with even more service improvements due by next Spring,

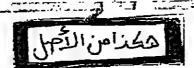

And with all the exclusive Japanese style, it's a Class you'll want to be in more often.

Subject to results of negotiations with UK authorities.

The longer the flight, the more the details matter.

The figures shown for the periods of six months ended 30 September 1982 and 1983 have been prepared in accordance with the accounting policies used in the production of the accounts of British Airways Board and its subsidiaries for the year ended 31 March 1983 except that the result for the period April to September 1983 takes account of the new accounting standard (SSAP 20) for foreign currency borrowings.

Notes:

1) No provision has been made for UK Corporation Tax on the profits of British Airways Board due to the availability of losses brought forward. The charges for taxation included in the results relate to subsidiaries and overseas.

2) The results shown are before extraordinary items which for the year ended 31 March 1983 was a credit of £26m and for the period April to September 1983 none arises.

The volume of mainline traffic was 4.5% down from that in the half year to 30 September 1982, but improved fare yields and the effect of weaker sterling increased total airline revenue by £111m.

The benefits of lower airline staff costs and fuel prices were more than cancelled out by certain higher costs including larger selling expenses and increases in non-sterling costs of goods and services.

The winter months always produce lower revenues but we are confident of a successful result for the year as a whole.

New Zealand's youngsters almost made to pay for their inexperience

RUGBY UNION: A SCRAPPY ILL-TEMPERED SPECTACLE AT TWICKENHAM

Rugby Correspondent

The inexperience of the young New Zealand forwards showed in the fourth match of their tour at Twickenham on Saturday, yet they won. They dominated completely in the third quarter of the game, as they have so often this year against. British sides, and showed them-deserved.

This is not to deny the commitment of the Divisional side, well led by Colclough, who proved, if he needed to, his fitness to return to England's side later this month. Blacks, yet it was hardly an uplifting experience. They dragged the touring team down in what was less a contest of skills, more one of ttrition.

If this was their initial plan, then the game could be described as a limited success for London, for they came the nearest of any team so far to matching these All Blacks. Yet they offered no alternative; it was a scrappy, sometimes ill-tempered contest littered with penalties for which the referee, Eric Allen, could hardly be blamed since many of the players were clearly bent on exercising destructive rather than creative talents.

There had to come a time when London expanded their game, certainly in the closing stages when a try would have won it, but still they kicked for ground rather than risking the ball beyond stand-off. Perhaps their confidence was dented by the shambles to which their remaps their commence was tented by the shambles to which their scrummage was reduced and the advantage the All Blacks may have derived from it. Yet they had an answer at the line-out which they domainmed and mill the hall never passed down the line once.

What hitle stiempt there was to play rugby came from the New Zealanders, mainly from tapped penalties; their cleanest source of ball. Otherwise their hopes were frustrated, as was the crowd of 17,500. "I never got really excited about anything today," Bryce Rope, the New Zealand coach said. "It never got off first base." Colclough did say, However, that his side was "far better organized as a team for this match than for any Lions match. We all knew exactly what we match. We all knew exactly what we were setting out to do." A sad postscript indeed to the summer in New Zealand.

He is Bridgend's leading scorer this season with 98 points, and has played games for Wates.

Mitchell try keeps Gala in the hunt

- By Inta Mackenzie

Gain had not won the National ague match at Kelso's Poynder League match at Kelso's Poynder Park since 1979, and until the whistle blew for the last time in Saturday's fixture they were by no means certain to improve that position. Only a try by Bruce Mitchell separated the sides at the end of an uniespiring encounter.

Kelso were defending their unbeaten record in the league; Gala, already overpowered by Hawick, bad to with to retain a serious. had to with to tetain a serious interest in holding on to their title. Gaia adopted their samiliar style of keeping the ball tight and letting it out in the threequarters only when there was no other move which As always, watching this was todious, the interest as with very few exceptions Scottish forwards have neither the mobility nor the training to support their own men-ia contrast to New Zealand forward play. The ball was buried all too often, and even if they had wanted to feed their backs, the Gala eight would have found difficulties.

Kelso were a more adventurous side, exhibiting the swashbuckling style which befits their claim to be unofficial Scottish sevens cham-

Paxton and Gerrard on the flanks took advantage of Leslie's absence to plunder as much ball as possible and it was left to the veteran Berthinussen to mop up for Gala.

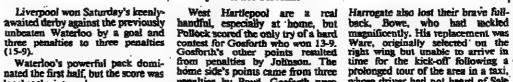

Colin Flannigan, Scotland's leading points scorer last scason with more than 500 to his credit, kicked two penalty goals for Kelso, including one from 55 metres, but Dods' unhappy form so far this season continued. He was successful with only one kick and eventually gave way to Bryson, who kicked the second penalty goal in his first attempt; Dods' loss of confidence is causing worry both at Netherdele and Murrayfield.

Hawick appeared to have fewer inhibitions. They travelled to the seaside resort of Ayr on league business for the first time and wor. 34-0. There were four tries divided among Murray, Douglas, Deans and Oliver. Gass converted three and kicked four penalty goals.

The margin was enough to edge Hawick to the top of the table ahead of Stewart's-Melville FP on points differential, although the Edic title also won comfortably, beating Kilmarnock 33-7 despite having to play the second half with 14 men ving an injury.

Selkirk, the other club with 100% record, beat Haddington 38-7.

Brilliant Torrance wins Portuguese Open again

European season to a glorious finale at Troia yesterday with a brilliant stroke which sealed his successful defence of the Portuguese Open. The 30-year-old Scot drilled a six iron to within 18 inches at the 190yard seventeenth, which hugs the coastline of the Atlantic ocean, to parry once and for all the courageous thrust of the less experienced Chris Moody. Another birdic at the last and the affable Torrance was home and dry with a final round of 70 for a winning aggragate of 286, two under par.

In the end Torrance had three rokes to spare over Moody, whose strokes to spare over Moody, whose 68 was the only individual round throughout the tournament under 70. But the final margin camouflages the intensity of the battle. By his own admission Torrance produced his finest ever season following victory in the scandinavian Open. "I had to do it," said Torrance afterwards "I'v my father's high afterwards. "It's my father's birth-day tomorrow and I asked him what he wanted. Just win the Porruguese

Open again' was his reply."

By taking 38 to reach the turn Torrance left the door open for several rivals to punish him after dropping strokes at the eighth and ninth. sion handed-out to 32 different jockeys during the season was another cause for public concern. Perhaps the total ban of 26 days awarded to Willie Carson will become the catalyst that will force the Jockey Club to rethink the problem. As far as the "totting-up" system is concerned, the present policy of treating a jockey like a persistently offending motorist is manifestly unfair. A motor car has all the aids, including a steering wheel, a clutch and brakes. Horses on the other hand are far more unpredictable vehicles with their tendency to

The Stewards of the Jockey Club are thoughtful and caring men. They may now be considering whether each individual case should be treated on its own ments. They may well also be thinking that the sentences have become out of all proportion to the offence.

That Carson, for example

cight days for his inability to prevent Air Distingue from veering to the right at Good. wood was little short of about After all it was Shall Mohammed's filly that was the initial cause of the trouble, not the jockey. Cases of deliberately dangerous riding are quite another matter and should continue to be severely punished. Of far more importance are the alleged cases of jockeys who have been suspected of doing their best not to win. The security services of the Jockey Club face a difficult task as they consider possible action over eveidence which the Director of Public Prosecutions has rejected as being inconclusive. For the sake and the integrity of the sport, the sooner this matter is dealt with one way or another

Now for the accolades. Dick Hera is champion trainer for the fifth time. Universally acknowledged as one of the great professionals in the world today, Hern's patient handling of Sun Princess to win three races including the Oaks and the St Leger, and to run such a superb race in defeat against All Along in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe was a typical example of his artistry.

Like Hern and Harwood John Dunlop also continues to grow in stature. Dunlop's total of prize money won at home and overseas of £870,392 is superior to Hern's similar earnings of £691,677. Our present race system is now producing some of the best horses in the world. The victory Tolomeo in the Budweiser Million and that of Old County in the French St Leger, puts Luca Cumani, with £403,059, at the head of the overseas table at present followed by Ian Bal-dwin, Dunlop and Hern. Of the other top men Henry Cecil, Michael Stoute and Barry Hills all finished in the first half dozen in the list. Geoffrey Wragg also deserves special mention for saddling Tecnoso to win the Derby in his first year after taking over the licence from his father, Harry.

Willie Carson was champion jackey for the fifth time. His timing, tactical sense and strength have never been seen to better advantage as he rode 159 winners. The imcomparable Lester Piggott finished second with 150 successes to his credit, followed by Pat Eddery with 122. Then came Starkey and Steve Cauthen.

High Hawk in Rome swoop

High Hawk, Bob Back and Mailman brought off a valuable treble for English trainers in Italy yesterday, High Hawk, riddes by Willie Carson and trained at Armidel by John Dunlog, wen the $26.834 Premio Roma in a four-way photo finish at the Capannelle Rome. Shaikh Mohammed's filly took the group one prize by a short head and two necks from Balitou. Looking For and Esprit du Nord, the it leger runner-up.

Bob Back, ridden by Brace

Raymond, was an impressive winser of the £15,053 Premio Tevere and is likely to return to this course for the Derby Italiano next May. Mailman (John Matthias) won the £1,226 Trofeo Cino Del Duca at San Sire, Milan. Sandown casualties

Greasy conditions prevailed again at Sandown Park on Saturday and, despite the bends and take-off and, despite the bends and take-offs being gritted, there was a 50 per ceat casualty rate in the Holsten Export Lager Handicap Chase won by the 11-10 favourite, Kilbrittain Castle. There were only four runners, but News King slipped and fell on the bend before the far straight and Artifice, jumping magnificently and in a clear lead went over on the the final bend and injured his back. their European byways of Wednesday night to more familiar and, apparently, more straightforward routes at home. Aston Villa, United's guests on Saturday, had not won away anywhere since April, and not at Old Trafford since 1954. Everton, Liverpool's visitors yesterday, last succeeded at Anfield 13 years ago. Since defeat for either of the championship favourites was scarcely a consideration, here within successive cold, but clear afternoons, was supposedly an opportunity to compare their respective merits. There may be little to choose between them overall (their formations and individuals are notably similar), but there was a yawning gap between the two approaches.

United, confident to the point of arrogance after seven consecutive victories, seemed content to wait for something to happen. So complete was their domination that for half an hour Villa needed binoculars to see the Stretford end they were attacking. So incomplete was their penetration that Spink was almost redundant

United needed a chain saw to open Villa's reshaped defence. Instad, they were fitted wih Whiteside, an instrument as sharp as a rusted hammer. After a remarkably unproductive hour, he was replaced by Macari, and only then did they and their supporters show some urgency. The position demanded a change of outlook

United are back in the position they filled a year ago, treading tinue, but think for a moment in their footsteps and looking about a team that could be for mistakes.

November United began to lose their touch last season, Ron Atkinson, their manager, admits that "I don't want to see that kind of gap opened up, because, even if you finish strongly, it can be very difficult to catch a team like Liverpool." The championship leaders will now go their own separate ways, although both travel south tomorrow for Milk Cup tics at Fulbam and Colchester, until they reach the fourth signpost, their return fixture at Antield on January 2. By then, the destiny of the title may be Speculation is sure to conabout a team that could be selected from the two leading English representatives, Bailey, Duxbury, Albiston, Hansen, Lawrenson, Wilkins, Souness, Robson, Dalglish, Stapleton and Rush. There surely can be little doubt that that hypothetical side would win any championship of any nation in the world.

• Everton's search for a striker to improve on their poor scoring rate of just seven goals in league games this season could stretch to Brazil. Manager Howard Kendall may try to tempt 29-year-old Joao Batista Nunez to become the first Brzilian to play in the English

Oxford were also without Law-rence, their leading scorer, and while Whatmore and Vinter have equalizer in the last seconds of injury time and their manager admits to being bappy with the draw, then you will understant how tough it was at times for Sheffield United at Manor Ground on Saturday caused a few fireworks in their time. they have had few opportunities this season to sparkle.

They gave their guests a dozen awkward moments in the first 20 minutes but all they had to show was a shot against the bar by Thomas, a rampant midfield player of nimble skill. Then finally Barnett, another player of sharp skills, scored when Waugh made a mess of cross.

· But what Sheffield United had spart from seasoned men like Stancliffe and McHale, was Edwards, one of the most prolific scorers around. Though playing deep, he was always where it mattered. And Oxford's impotent finishing. Oxford were like a box of fireworks all set off at the same time, players zooming here, zooming there. A second half improvement cnabled Celtic, who were shadows of the scintillating side which had humiliated Sporting Lisbon on Wednesday, to take both points and leapfrog over Dundee United to put themselves into second position.

They took advantage of the slower. They took advantage of the sloppy Rangers defence to score through McGarvey and Burns. Near the end, Clark carned a consolation goal for Rangers.

It was, however, too fast and fierce a match for skilled football to emerge and, with a referee failing to stamp his authority at the start, it degenerated into a head-on collision between these deadly rivals. In the end Celtic may have been fortunate to win but they finished the more composed, adroit team.

Play was also fiercely competitive in the local derbies in Dundee and Edinburgh, At Dens Park, it was the Edinburgh. At Dens Park, it was the manager of the home club, Donald Mackay, who wore the winner's smile. After 11 attempts to defeat his former club, Mackay at last succeeded in leading Dundee to his first victory, by a goal scored by Mackie, at the twelfth time of asking. Dundee may have been upset by worry that they were about to lose their manager and they were never at their best.

Middlesex reach county semi-finals

Hampshire

Middlesex, after beating Hampshire at Hounslow yesterday, finished top of their group, and qualified for the South semi-final of e county championshop. All the goals were scored in the second half of a somewhat patchy game and the line-up for next week's semi-finals is: Middlesex v Kent, Sussex v Hampshire, who like Middlesex were short of talent because of international commitments, took control in the first 20 minutes, but could not capitalise on their ascendancy. Hacker was impressive in Hampshire's middle line and Baker on the right was the best of the forwards. British girls are no match

Williamsburg, Virginia (Reuter) – Great Britain had no answer to the power of Martina Navratilova and Pam. Shriver as the United States completed their 6-1 victory in the Wightman Cup yesterday.

Miss Shriver won the first 10 games to crush an injured Sue Barker 6-0, 6-1 in 40 minutes to give the United States an unbeatable 4-1 lead in the first match of the day. Miss Navratilova, the world's No 1 player, followed up with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Jo Durie. It was Miss Navratilova's seventy-eighth vic-tory in 79 matches this year.

The two Americans then paired up to overwhelm the makeshift pair of Miss Durie and Annabel Croft 6-2, 6-1. Miss Croft was a late replacement for Anne Hobbs, who

The Amerians now lead 45-10 in the 60-year-old competition that was suspended in the war years 1940-45. The United States has now won the last five competitions.

Benefits of a sandwich course

Robert Wall describes sponsored degree courses on which students are paid

If there is a guaranteed route to a good career, it is probably that which goes from A levels to a degree via sponsorship by large companies such as British Aerospace, Cadbury Schweppes, Ferranti, Ford, Hewlett Packard, ICI, Jaguar Cars, Lucas or Rolls Royce, Such organizations sponsor substantial, numbers of young people for degrees in subjects such as mechanical, electrical, production or aeronautical engineering, business studies and computer science. A sponsored student is treated as an employee and is sent to a university or polytechnic, returning to the company for periods of practical experience and job training, with a virtual guarantee of permanent employment at the end of the course. The sponsored student will receive a salary for at least part of each year and the employer may pay, in addition, up to £345 (£845) where science and technology are being studied) before the LEA grant companies will sponsor students for normal, full-time degree courses, often with a year in the company first, with students returning during the vacations or perhaps only during the long vacations, but a much larger number of organizations are being prepared to sponsor students only to intergrate sandwich courses in the technological universities or the polytechnics.

companies, and even during the current recession are able virtually to guarantee sponsorship for suitable applicants to certain departments. "Suitable" in this case means having the personal qualities to impress at interview, as well as the academic qualifications that are usually the only real requirement for entry to a degree course. The Faculty of Technology entry in the Brunel prospectus includes the following phrase: "Brunel has close links with engineering industry, and if a firm assesses the engineering potential as good, the admissions tutor will take this into account when assessing the actual A level attainment prior to offering a firm place in the Faculty". Dr Ian Cole, industrial liaison tutor in Aston's Faculty of Engineering, said in reply to a question about the arrangements for sandwich course students: "The technological universities are in partnership with industry in the education and training of undergraduates. In departments such as mechanical. production and electrical engineering we are able to obtain sponsorship for about 50 per cent of students. These men and women will have a good understanding of industry by the time they graduate."

It seems that the engineering departments of all the technological universities are able to arrange sponsorship for at least some of their students, but this is much less likely in courses such as business studies or the pure sciences, where the student is much more likely both to be university-based and to be sent for practical experience to a number of different employers.

The recession has hit the polytechnics harder than it has the universities, and most report that the days of the sponsored student are virtually over. Indeed, some polytechnic departments say that the very existence of the sandwich course is threatened because of the reluctance of firms to take students on placement. However, the picture seems to vary from polytechnic to polytechnic, and Pat Ellis, Trent's industrial liaison officer, takes a more optimistic view, saying that placement was "very successful last year" and that he sees no reason why this year should be any worse.

If an applicant is interested in a particular institution because of the availability of a sandwich course, it would be advisable to make careful placement will be. It is not unknown for students to be transferred to the full-time course, and applicants should investigate what has happened to students in the previous year or two.

There is no doubt that taking a sandwich course is a substantial advantage when it comes to looking for appropriate graduate employ-ment. Many students are offered a job by an organization that has rovided professional training, for baving had someone for an interview" lasting six months or a year means that the employer is able to form a really accurate picture of the applicant. Even if a student is not offered a job in this way, (or does not want the job offered), having some work experience will be an advantage when compared with a similarly qualified full-time student. Indeed, some employers have expressed concern because sandwich course students interview so much better than others, so that they sometimes give a false impression of their real ability.

As well as the advantages of job prospects and money (some students have a total income of more than sandwich course students are better able to absorb their academic work because they are applying the theory in the workplace. This is one reason given by Peter Steele, group personnel manager for Lansing Bagnall, the Basingstoke-based engineering company, for preferring to train engineers by means of Similar courses. comments are made by personnel and training staff in many other

Sixth-formers who are interested in the idea of sponsorship should obtain a copy of Sponsorship, a booklet available free of charge from Careers and Occupational Infor-mation Centre, Manpower Services Commission, The Pennine Centre, Hawley Street, Sheffield S1 3GA. However, not only is obtaining sponsorship very competitive but it is likely to be somewhat easier to obtain through a department than by writing to the firms listed in the booklet. Sponsorship companies also advertise in the national press from time to time.

As there is considerable confusion over the terms used when referring to sandwich courses it will be useful to define the more important of

Integrated sandwich course: One

This sandwich course: One in which periods in employment with the normal grant paid for the two terms of academic study. The amount of grant depends on parental income in the usual way.

Thick sandwich course: This term is used for two quite different types of course. The technological universities and the polytechnics normally use it for the 2:1:1 structure, i.e. two years of study, followed by one year in a job and then a final year of study. Other universities use "thick sandwich" when referring to a 1:3:1 structure, i.e. a year in a job, followed by a normal three-year degree and a further one year in employment. The technological universities are: Aston, Bath, Bradford, Brunel, City, Loughborough, Salford, Surrey, University of Wales traditional style of course.

Pioneer new approaches with our customers and field staff.

 Develop management education courses, working with a team of dedicated professionals.

 Teach these and other courses at our Education Centre in North West London and at other locations in the UK and occasion-

These are just some of the things you can expect when you add your high level of experience and communication skills to our Systems Management Education Department-a training centre which equips senior staff with the knowledge to plan, manage and control Information Systems.

But to join us in the following areas, we're not just looking for teachers. We need professional men and women who want to make the very best of their experience in planning and developing business systems through an educational role.

Project Management

The demand here is for a deep, practical knowledge of the tools and techniques of project management. You are therefore likely to be a manager or senior professional in a data processing environment-preferably with experience of planning information systems and, ideally, of teaching.

Data Analysis

The ideal candidate is likely to be a senior systems analyst, a designer or a data base administrator with a sound working knowledge of data modelling and systems design in a business field-using leading edge techniques. Experience in other areas of Application Development or in teaching would be an added advantage.

So, if you hold a degree or have an equivalent level of education, and you're looking for a new set of challenges—with a salary and benefits package to match your experience, please phone 01-995 1441 ext. 4078 for an application form, or write to Sally-Anne Judge, Recruitment Officer, IBM United Kingdom Limited, 389 Chiswick High Road, London W44AL. The Times guide to career choice

Less than 10 years ago university departments that ran sandwich courses in engineering had great difficulty in attracting students with even moderate qualifications. Because of the dramatic increase in unemployment, together perhaps with a new understanding of the role of the professional engineer, there are now very many able sixth-formers who are interested in the idea of a degree course which includes employer-based pro-fessional training. The sandwich course is now perceived to be the safest route to appropriate employ-

SHADA - an organization made up of parents, ex-addicts, community workers and users of heroin who want to kick the habit. Two of the latter category are featured tonight

- Gary, a 19-year old who turned to petty crime to subsidise his addiction, and Pam, a pathetic, pretty, 16-year old who has been hooked on heroin for about a year. Theirs are disturbing tales but, unfortunately, not exceptional ones for the area, where, it is estimated, I in 12 of the younger population is an addict. Made by the same team that was responsible for the excellent Living in Styal, this is an equally penetrating look at a disturbing nether-world.

Azerbaijan. Both are tough political operators, however, and have the edge over Mr Gorbachov, who at 52 is held to be too young this time round. Sources said there were some signs of internal paralysis. Sessions of the Central Committee and Supreme Soviet were expected later this month but have not been announced. Crucial local party elections now under way are being used as a mini-purge, intended to culminate in a pro-Andropov Central Committee.

Despite the political uncertainty caused by President Andropov's absence, his policy on the critical arms control is being maintained by other Politburo members.

Mr Romanov, in his keynote speech on Saturday, made several ringing references to Mr Andropov's opposition to the imminent deployment of cruise and Pershing 2 missiles, to ripples of applause. There was a slight, almost undetectable stir in the ball as the Politburo the staghe, minus Mr Andro-between, veterans like Mr pov, and the neat blue-suited Andrei Gromyko and Mr figure of Mr Romanov strode to the rostrum.

He said that the Labour leadership during the general election had made only "a few percentage points difference to the result" and added that "a good leader with the wrong policies would be just as vulnerable and unsuccessful as a bad leader with good

It is a story of high drama that Evelyn Waugh would have relished. Our own Queen plays a part, and there are also plays a part, and there are also ruthless revolutionaries, the gung-ho American admired who ran the war and made John Wayne look like a dove, the Cuban ambassador's green-eyed wife who gave press conferences at her front sets under the harmle of an gate under the barrel of an American machine gun, and a cast of thousands of soldiers, diplomats and journalists, including the wine correspondent of the New York Times, who paused to report impend-ing war before heading for France to inspect the vineyards. It seems rather odd today that all this should bave happened in this small benana and nutmeg island whose little capital looks like Tobermory. The power in the land, de facto, is the American Army. The 3,000 remaining troops patrol the roads and dash aobut in Jeeps with gues and crates of Coca Cola. There have been bad moments for those who use local taxis: Americans sometimes forget that Grenadians drive on the Soldiers at checkpoints have graduated from charm school, and never for get to say: "You all have a nice day

Meanwhile, the Queen is Queen of Grenada and her man, Sir Paul Scoon, the Governor-General, is legal head of government and something of a fig leaf for the Americans. It is lucky for Grenada that its link with the Crown provided a hand hold amid disorder.
The genial Sir Paul, or Sir

Scoon, as Americans some-times call him, is now forming an interim government of decent, non-political people, a sort of government by Rotary Club. American soldiers see, rather foggy about the constitutional position, and are not sure how the Limeys' Queen fits into all this.

The British, it must be said,

have not scored many points

two years ago, when Maurice Bishop wrote to other heads of government: "We are convinced we are about to be invaded by the Reagan Ad-ministration. President Reagan had always viewed Grenada as a Soviet-Cuban base and export centre for terrorism. wanted to stamp hard on Cuban fingers and demonstrate American strength and resolve.

He saw the airport as a threatening base. Maurice Bishop's Government regard-ed it as a symbol of self-re-liance and a prerequisite for a strong townst trade and improved commerce. It is funded mainly by EEC and Arab money.
The Americans found it easy enough to take the island, but the idea that they can simply walk in, impose a political system to their liking and walk out again is questionable. A year's breathing space before elections are held may be too short, Many Grenadians want the Americans to stay

Grenada has suffered a severe shock, and it will not be easy to create a democratic system from the political

With the arrival of the Americans many Grenadians feel they have been given a second chance. But the eu-phoria will fade and world attention will turn to other events. But the island's difficulties are going to be immense, and it may not be as easy for the Americans to leave as they thought.

Fieldfares from Scandinavia are spreading through the country. The feed on the applie in scattere flocks, but fly up with chuckling cries and gather in the trees at the sight of man or dog. Bramblings are seek out wintering places where beechmast is abundant, and in some years flock in millions to the Swiss beech forests.

In most parts of Britain, autum leaves are now at their most spectacular. Beeches are ablaze with orange and yellow; there are yellow takes of leaves under the black Italian poplars: the few remaining imes that have leaves are like pai limes that have leaves are like pale parchment lamps when the sun shines through them. Cherry and gean are in every shade of purple and crimson. Sweet chestaut leaves flutter through the air like slender yellow fish, while the last prickly seed-cases plop to the ground: the grey squirrels quickly clean out the chestnuts. A rich, mosty smell of leaves fills woods and gardens.

A few moths and butterflies are still about. Small tortoiseshells are feeding on the late buddlieig before ling on the late buddlieia before feeding on the late buddhesa before hibernating, and silver Y moths -
